

Segerstrom Center announces online musical theater training

One enthusiastic parent whose child participated in Segerstrom Center for the Arts' Musical Theatre Training Program this past fall said, "Please offer more musical theatre classes soon!" And so, the Center's Education Department has announced a new series of classes for aspiring young performers ages 9-18 in February.

Students of all experience levels are welcome for this 5-class virtual program, where they will be coached in musical theater performance and technique by some of the industry's leading live stage professional artists and educators. The classes will be live but virtual Tuesdays and Thursdays February 9, 11, 16, 18 and 23. Because the classes are live, there is immediate interaction between students and faculty while everyone remains completely safe. Classes will focus on musical theater performance, acting, improv and dance.

The Winter 2021 Fall Musical Theater Program will have two tracks, one for students ages 9-13 and one for ages 14-18. Entrance is not audition-based, so registration is on a first-come, first-served basis, and capacity is limited. Tuition for all five classes is $150, and registration can be completed online at <https://www.scfta.org/Engage-and-Learn/Camps-and-Classes/Virtual-Musical-Theater-Courses/Overview.aspx>

Classes will be 60-75 minutes in length. Classes for students 9-13 years of age will be at 4:00pm, and classes for students 14-18 years of age will be at 6:00pm. Sessions are listed below:

Web site report speculates on Disneyland's potential Passport ticket fix

While Disney's annual ticket pass holders are still wondering what will come next, a popular Disney web site that calls itself the "happiest place in cyberspace", micechat.com, published an article this week which provides some speculation on what might come next.

From Mice chat. It's been a week of high anxiety for many Disneyland passholders, wondering how they'll be able to access the parks now that they've been notified their annual passes have been canceled. We've never received so many messages asking for our thoughts and advice. Well, today we have a bit of clarity on what Disneyland is considering and how they might move forward. Plus, have you ever wondered how much Disney's CEO makes?

The company has released info on compensation for the two Bobs. And we'll take a look at a big upcoming Disneyland attraction, pay tribute to a beloved annual event which had to be canceled for the season, and share something which will make you smile.

What Will Replace Disneyland's Annual Pass Program

Disneyland has tipped their hand at ticket options they are considering in the future. Surveys sent to current and former Disneyland passholders asks potential visitors which features they'd be most interested in, how often they visited in the past, and how likely they'd be to visit in the future given certain example ticket and pass types. The extensive 50+ page survey will surely give Disney a lot of data to analyze. We'll use some of Disney's key points to create a survey or two of our own for purposes of discussion and to see what our own readers think.

When Disneyland was built in 1955, they could never have imagined the popularity of the park 65 years later. It just wasn't built for crowds the size they've become. If the shutdown and subsequent cancellation of the pass program did nothing else, they've allowed Disneyland to reset priorities and rethink how they want to move forward.

More on each NHL player's performance can be found below:

Toffoli led the NHL in goals (5), points (tied; 8) and plus/minus (tied; +6) across four contests to power the Canadiens (4-0-2, 10 points) to a 3-0-1 week, helping Montreal become the second team in League history to record a point in each of its first six games of a season, with each outing taking place on the road. He posted one assist in a 3-1 win over the Edmonton Oilers Jan. 18. Toffoli then found the scoresheet in three straight contests against his former team, the Vancouver Canucks, tallying a hat trick in a 6-5 shootout loss Jan. 20, 2-1-3 in a 7-3 triumph Jan. 21 and one assist in a 5-2 victory Jan. 23. In doing so, Toffoli - who signed with the Canadiens on Oct. 12 - became the first player in League history to score each of his first five goals with a franchise against his previous team. The 28-year-old Scarborough, Ont., native and 2013-14 Stanley Cup winner (w/ LAK) has compiled 150-158-308 in 531 career NHL games with Montreal, Vancouver and the Los Angeles Kings.

Second Star - Joe Pavelski, C, Dallas Stars

Pavelski registered 3-4-7, including a pair of game-winning goals, to guide the Stars (2-0-0, 4 points) to victories in each of their first two contests of 2020-21. He matched the franchise record for points in a season opener, posting 2-2-4 in a 7-0 triumph over the Nashville Predators Jan. 22. Pavelski (1-2-3) then factored on all three Dallas goals in a 3-2 win against Nashville Jan. 24. At 36 years, 197 days, the Plover, Wis., native became the oldest player in NHL history to collect three or more points in each of his team's first two games of a season, besting the mark set by Rod Gilbert (35 years, 99 days) in 1976-77 with the New York Rangers.
